completes a proficiency examination, and so forth. But I guess what is being attempted by this bill is to say that some other organization may have existed before the one being discussed. And the only group I think they're talking about is this Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs, that group itself or the agency that preceded it, or the one that may follow it, and anybody who graduated from a program approved by this agency in whatever form it existed, I suppose, would be allowed to qualify as a physician assistant. Nothing is said in here about any standards that the predecessor agency needs to have met; nothing about any standards that the successor agency has to meet. So if standards are what we're talking about, this bill, as it exists in current law, the bill, as it would amend the law, does not do much for standards. What it does is a type of grandfathering again. There might be some people whose credentials are questioned and those credentials are questioned because they had graduated from some program administered by a group that grew into or became this Commission on Accreditation, and I don't know whether that is a wise policy. But we shall not have the opportunity to pursue it in-depth because, unfortunately, the sands of time are flowing through the...

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...through the hourglass, and just as the days of our lives moves sometimes faster than a weaver's shuttle, those sands move rapidly, sometimes they seem to move slowly. And as Einstein said in explaining his theory of relativity, and I didn't know he was this perceptive until I read a bit more about some of his activities outside of science, time seems to go rapidly if you're with a beautiful desirable woman, but it seems to go very slowly if you're perched on a red-hot stove, and that was to explain the theory of relativity to those of us who are not as advanced in the scientific pursuits as he is. And so Senator Hartnett will not feel left off, I've offered or tendered my standard motion.

PRESIDENT MAURSTAD: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Mr. Clerk.

CLERK: Mr. President, Senator Chambers would move to indefinitely postpone the bill. Senator Hartnett, you have the
